

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON THE PROTECTION OF PERSONAL DATA

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES

Recognizing that individuals should be able to control their personal data, and that the processing of personal data should be subject to fair and lawful principles, the participants at this conference have agreed on the following principles:

1. Personal data should be processed lawfully, fairly and in a transparent manner in relation to individuals.

2. Personal data should be collected for specified, explicit and legitimate purposes and not further processed in a manner that is incompatible with those purposes.

3. Personal data should be adequate, relevant and limited to what is necessary in relation to the purposes for which they are processed.

4. Personal data should be accurate and, where necessary, kept up to date. Every reasonable step should be taken to ensure that personal data are accurate and that any outdated or irrelevant data are erased or rectified.

5. Personal data should be kept for no longer than is necessary for the purposes for which the data are processed.

6. Individuals should have the right to access their personal data and to have that data corrected, erased or destroyed.

7. Individuals should have the right to object to the processing of their personal data.

8. There should be a mechanism for individuals to lodge a complaint if they believe that their personal data have been processed in a way that is not in accordance with these principles.

These principles are intended to provide a common framework for the protection of personal data across different jurisdictions. They are not intended to be exhaustive and should be interpreted in the context of the specific legal and cultural environment in which they are applied.

The participants at this conference have agreed to work together to promote and implement these principles, and to share best practices and experiences in the field of personal data protection.

They have also agreed to establish a permanent body to monitor and report on the implementation of these principles, and to provide guidance and support to individuals and organizations alike.

The participants at this conference have agreed to work together to promote and implement these principles, and to share best practices and experiences in the field of personal data protection.
